

THIS VIRUS A CURE FOR ALL

Disease Will Flee Before the Universal Panacea of Prof. Welch, of Baltimore, Says Dr. John A. Wyeth.

A SUPPLANTER OF DRUGS.

The Discovery an Accomplished Fact, Not a Theory Now, Says the Physician, Who Gives Due Praise to Jenner and Pasteur.

The wonderful medical theory which has just been advanced by Prof. William H. Welch, of Baltimore, whereby all diseases to which humanity is heir can be prevented, or, if already in existence, made to speedily disappear, is most heartily endorsed by Dr. John A. Wyeth of this city, who returned from Carlsbad and Paris on the Kronprinz Wilhelm, and who was present when the discoverer told of his cure before the London Medical Congress.

Dr. Wyeth looks upon the startling statement that there can be obtained a universal virus which, once inoculated into the system, will render the patient immune to all contagion as perfectly logical and true.

May Supplant All Drugs.

While discussing the remarkable discovery with an Evening World reporter to-day he said it would not be long before every physician in the world would use this new virus, or panacea. In preference to the absolute exclusion of any other drugs. He stated that the question of the best manner of administering the serum had not yet been determined, but as soon as this point was settled satisfactorily its adoption by all the medical profession would be almost immediate.

Dr. Wyeth talked of the cure as no longer a theory but an established fact. He said:

"Science has always held in regard to immunization of the human race from disease that what is true of any one disease, both as to cause and to immunization from its effects, must be true of all disease, and in the course of time the immunization from each will be effected. As the vaccine virus furnishes immunization from small-pox, and as Behring's serum gives freedom from diphtheria, so for each disease there has been found such a serum or such a substance for preventing this morbid process.

"The world is chiefly indebted to Pasteur for the inestimable boon of immunization, since his researches in bacteriology and in the relation of bacteria to disease are practically the foundation of all our success in this field. It is well known that the discovery of vaccination by Jenner long preceded Pasteur's, but Jenner was one of those wonderful accidents, and his effect on the world was all that was understood for many years.

ITS USE REVOLUTIONARY.

"This discovery of Prof. Welch's will revolutionize all other serum or vaccine preventives and cures, as by the simple and instantaneous injection of this new liquid all diseases may be made to be a thing of the past.

"Physicians, unlike ordinary inventors, feel it incumbent upon themselves to disclose any and all inventions and discoveries that they make. Making no exception of his everlasting fortune out of his discoveries if he had chosen to keep them secret, Prof. Welch's name will go down to posterity as the greatest bacteriologist and disease destroyer the world has ever known."

FAST EXPRESS JUMPS TRACK

Leaves Rails at East Winsted Junction, Holding Up Railroad Commissioner's Special.

WINSTED, Conn., Oct. 14.—The Mountain Express, the fastest train on the Central New England Railroad (Poughkeepsie Branch Route), which leaves Winsted for Hartford at 8.57, was derailed at the junction of that road and the Naugatuck Division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad at East Winsted, this morning. None of the passengers was hurt, although all received a bad shaking up.

The accident impeded traffic on both roads, and five passenger trains were stalled at the scene of the accident, including a special, which was bearing the State Railroad Commissioners and officers of the Central New England Company over the latter's tracks on a tour of inspection.

Railroad men attribute the accident to a defective "cross-over." Before Engineer Timothy Farrell was able to bring the express to a standstill, the engine was off the iron and all the coaches were on the Naugatuck Division tracks. Traffic was resumed shortly after noon.

SENT TO ALMSHOUSE.

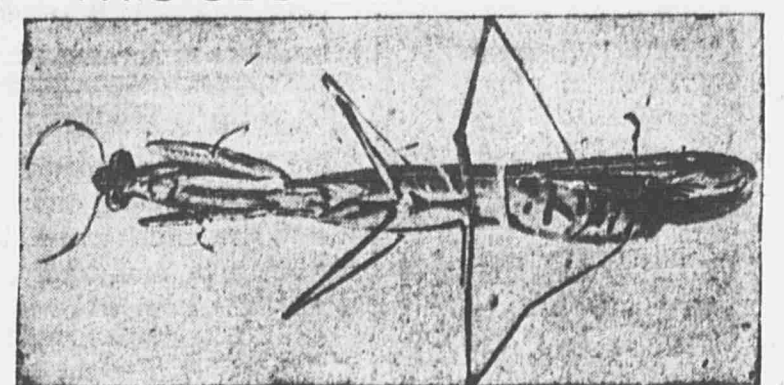

Aged Jewess, Suffering from Senile Dementia, Goes There.

Supt. Merwin, of the Out-Door Poor Department, to-day sent Esther Wanger, seventy-four years old, to the Alms-house. The old woman was for thirteen years an inmate of the Home for Aged Hebrews, at One Hundred and Fifth street, and Columbus avenue. A few days ago she was sent to Bellevue hospital for examination as to her sanity, and Dr. Packer, the insanity expert, after making an examination, decided that the old woman was suffering from senile dementia.

BRIGHT HASTENED HER DEATH.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 15.—Mrs. Christina Messeroll, of Upper Livingston avenue, is dead of heart trouble. A short time ago Mrs. Messeroll was badly frightened by a cow which attacked her, and the fright is supposed to have hastened her death.

THREE NAMES SO FAR FOR THIS ODD BUG—WHAT IS IT?

WONDERFUL BUG MYSTERY STILL. WOMAN GUEST LEFT BILL UNPAID.

"Praying Mantis," Mosquito's "Devil's Needle," Says Another.

The New Jersey bug which neither jumps nor flies, and whose picture (looking pleasant) was printed in yesterday's Evening World, has been identified and classified. Alma Steddel, of Arlington, N. J., says that it is the "Praying Mantis" of the tropical jungle, and that it is the greatest enemy of the mosquito.

Mr. Steddel says that when he saw the bug he recognized it at once as an old and esteemed friend whom he had met on many of his walks in Para. There he had seen it vanquish the huge mosquito of the tropics with one hand tied behind it and without half trying.

Takes Issue at Once.

Mr. John Having of this city, however, has written to The Evening World, and in his letter he takes violent issue with Mr. Steddel. He says:

"The non-descript bug which is described in Tuesday's Evening World is not a bug at all. In Kansas they call it a 'Devil's Horse.' I have seen them time and again. They come in two shades of color—green and brown. They both jump and fly and are quite antipathetic when disturbed. There is another species of this insect which is similar in appearance to the 'Devil's Horse,' but its body is more slender. It is known as the 'Devil's Darning Needle.' To the youngsters the 'Devil's Horse' is as much of a terror as the thousand-legged worm. He is often seen in New York."

Confirms Mr. Steddel.

Mr. Steddel will probably feel relieved when he learns that his classification agrees with that of Mr. E. D. Rowley, of No. 226 Myerson street, Brooklyn, who invites us to say:

To the Editor of The Evening World: "In answer to your question as to what the strange bug is captured in New Jersey and pictured in this evening's issue, I would say it is a fine specimen of the 'Praying Mantis,' a carnivorous insect very common in the South, but seldom seen so far north as New Jersey. The young readers of your paper should look up the history of the 'Mantis' in my, as it is very interesting."

Still another theory is furnished by James Elverson, of Trenton, N. J., who, after looking at the picture of the bug in The Evening World, said to me: "I don't see that it was a seven-year locust. Mr. Elverson says that he once fought these pests for three days and nights (the number of rounds not given) on the plains of Dakota, and that their ferocious appearance so impressed him that he would know one in the dark. He says that the photograph in no way flatters the insect."
